FIENDISH CRIME COMMITTED BY DISCHARGED COACHMAN.

King Went to Home of Former Employer, J. M. Finlay of Chester Hill, and Cut Little Girl's Throat-Then Killed Himself—Disenarged for Drunkenness.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Jan. 7 .- The fouryear-old daughter of J. M. Finlay was murdered this morning by Albert King, a coachman, who was discharged by the child's father six months ago because he was drunk too often and bothered the maid, Elizabeth Hannen with his too frequent offers of marriage. After killing the child King shot and killed himself.

The little girl's name was Helen Marion. She was sitting on the couch in her father's library looking at a picture book when King seized her by the hair and drew a razor across her throat, almost severing her head from the body. The Hannen girl was in the room at the time, but was so thoroughly terrified that she could neither protect the child nor get help in time to prevent the tragedy.

The only other person in the house at the time was Mary Meyers, another servant. She was in the kitchen. Mr. and Mrs. Finlay were in New York.

The Finlay home is in Corcoran Manor, Chester Hill. After King lost his job there be was employed by Dr. G. Agate House of 136 Park avenue, Mount Vernon. But he made frequent visits to the Finlay home to see the maid, Elizabeth Hannen. She refused to marry him and told him that he was not a welcome caller. She believed that he was a married man with a family in Philadelphia.

A few days ago King heard that the girl was receiving the attentions of another man who had called on her on New Year's night. Enraged by this information he visited the Finlay house last night, and after again pleading with her to marry him. and being refused, said that if she would not have him she should never have any other man.

This morning shortly before 10 o'clock he again appeared at the Finlay mansion. Mr. and Mrs. Finlay had just left the house for New York when he arrived. Their present coachman, John Sutherland, was in the barn. King opened the back door and went into the kitchen, where he met Mary Myers. "Where can I find Lizzie?" he asked. The servant noticed a wild look in his eyes and hesitated. Without giving her time to frame a reply king pushed open the door of the dining room and went to look for the Hannen girl.

She was in the library dusting off a bookcase and taking care of Helen Marion. As King entered the room the nurse heard his step and looked up.

"Good morning," said he, sharply.

"Why, good morning, Albert, she said. "What has brought you here so early?"

The coachman made no reply to the question. He walked over to where the child was sitting, stood over her chair and stared at the servant. Suddenly he began grinding his teeth, and then without further warning killed the child.

The nurse ran screaming from the room. present coachman, John Sutherland, was in mg nis teeth, and then without further warning killed the child.

The nurse ran screaming from the room.

"He's murdering Helen, he's murdering her, murder, murder!" she shrieked as she fied. The nurse was joined in her flight from the house by the Myers woman, who during the tragedy had remained in the kitchen. The women rushed into the street and screamed. A crowd of neighbors soon collected before the house. The servants were so hysterical that they were unable to explain the trouble to A. J. McCarten, led the way into the hosue. He found the baby's body on the floor. The coachman, who was still alive, was on the floor in the next room. A razor covered with blood was lying on the dining room table. Mr. McCarten telephoned at once for the police and Detective Walters arrived soon after. The murderer was still breathing when the detective arrived, but died before the doctors got there.

the detective arrived, but died before the doctors got there.

Mr. Finlay formerly had two dry goods atores of his own, one at Third avenue and Thirty-seventh street and the other at 100th atreet and Columbus avenue, New York. He is now in the employ of Saks & Co., at Sixth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. He is 50 years old. Mrs. Finlay is 36. Helen Marion was their only child.

The parents were informed of the tragedy

The parents were informed of the tragedy The parents were informed of the tragedy by telephone. They returned to Mount Vernon this afternoon.

A search of the murderer's room at the A search of the murderer's room at the home of Dr. House revealed the fact that he was known in Philadelphia as Albert Faber. Letters from France addressed to 527 Wilder street, Philadelphia, were found in his trunk. There were other letters from brokers, which showed that while living in Philadelphia he had occasionally speculated in stocks. The Coroner also found a life insurance policy for $1,000 and a letter written on Christmas Day by King to Miss Hanner.

to Miss Hannen.

The letter, which was never sent, was to the effect that the murderer could not be happy without the love of the maid. Besides the letters King had a lot of newspaper clippings telling of different ways of At the inquest this afternoon Miss Hannen

At the inquest this afternoon Miss Hannen said:

"I know of no reason why he should have harmed the child. He knew her quite well and liked her. I would have grabbed the baby away from him, but I feared that if I did so I might hurt her. I did not realize that he was going to kill her. When I ran out of the room I thought I could get help and return before he harmed her."

Chief Foley of the Mount Vernon police said to-night that in his opinion King murdered the little girl for revenge because her father discharged him as coachman, and thus deprived him of the pleasure of being near his sweetheart.

TAMMANY OUT TO DO DEVERY.

LAW SUITS PUT OVER WHILE PRIMARY IS FIXED UP.

It Is Supposed That Goodwin Will Be Allowed to Appoint the Election Officers in the Ninth Where Devery Has the Votes-Armed Truce Meanwhile.

That Tammany does not mean to let Devery or his district organization name the primary officers for the Ninth for the coming election of delegates to the Senate convention of the Sixteenth district was shown yesterday in the course of argument before Justice Leventritt when Big Bill's first action at law against Tammany came

The writ directing the General Committee to show cause why Peter J. Garvey should not be put in possession of his rights as a member thereof was returnable at 10 o'clock James, Schell & Elkus, who appeared for Garvey asked for an adjournment. It was stated that the Big Chief's case was to be argued by Leslie W. Russell, a former Justice of the Supreme Court. Mr Russell was ill yesterday. Devery was not in court. His attorney suggested an adjournment until Friday.

Max D. Steuer, who appeared for Tammany, said he was ready to proceed, but he would consent to an adjournment if Garvey's counsel would stipulate that the General Committee of Tammany might hold a meeting on Friday to appoint primary officers so that the nominating machinery after this proceeding has been heard." Devery's lawyer said he could not make such a stipulation.

"Yet these men went to Justice Gaynor in Brooklyn.

"If the other side will consent to our suggestions," said Mr. Steuer, "we will go a step further and agree that the members of the General Committee?" Devery's lawer asked.

"Yet these men went to Justice Gaynor in Brooklyn late on Monday afternoon and on the same papers, although in the name of another man, got an injunction just as the Executive Committee was about to meet."

"If the other side will consent to our suggestions," said Mr. Steuer, "we will go a step further and agree that the members of the General Committee from the Ninth —the Devery men—shall be recognized at the meeting to be held in relation to the election of a State Senator."

"Will you stipulate to recognize our member of the Executive Committee?" Devery's lawyer asked.

"Ye sir," said Mr. Steuer with much "Then I insist that we proceed," said awyer asked.

"No, sir," said Mr. Steuer with much emphasis.

Devery's lawyers wanted it stipulated

Committeemen should

"No, sir," said Mr. Steuer with much emphasis.
Devery's lawyers wanted it stipulated that his General Committeemen should name the primary officers of the Ninth. Mr. Steuer declared that the whole General Committee and not any district division of it named the officers under the law. Devery's lawyers said it had always been the custom to let each district nominate its primary officials.

A temporary recess was taken to allow a consultation between Devery's lawyer and Justice Russell. Then the lawyers patched up a stipulation to adjourn the Garvey case until Tuesday of next week, and the Stewart case in Brooklyn until Wednesday, both cases to be argued on those days. Meantime the General Commitee may meet to act on the Senate primaries. Justice Leventritt prescribed that in that meeting the members from the Ninth shall be allowed to exercise all the privileges that the practice of Tammany or the law gives them.

This puts it up to the legal advisers of Tammany to decide whether the stipulation will be violated if the General Committee names anti-Devery men to conduct the primaries in the Ninth. The law says the General Committee may name them. The practice of Tammany has been to let each district make its own selections.

Tammany leaders intimated last night that the letter of the law would be obeyed, but that the practice was subject to change, and that Frank Goodwin would name the men to run the primaries in the Ninth.

Devery said last night: "I'm goin' to the meetin' of the General Committee Friday night, if it's goin' to be a peaceful and lawabidin' affair. I don't care to go if Murphy is goin' to have a hundred of Greene's policemen there to leak me on the lead. I'm a most law-abidin' citizen, and I don't see why they should fill the cellar of Tammany Hall with coppers every time they think I'm going to call. The court has given me my rights temporarily, and if any of the second dealers of the Fourteenth street crew try to deal me any cards frum the bottom, the court has a hand in the game and will insist

WHAT GANNON "SQUEALED" ON

BUNT REILLY'S POOL ROOM AND THE PEOPLE BACK OF IT.

Gannon Was Sent to the Goats by Col. Partridge After Refusing to "Stand For" the Place, or So He Says-He Is

A motion for the dismissal of the indictment for neglect of duty in East Twentysecond street which was lodged against Police Captain James Gannon a year ago last November was made yesterday before Recorder Goff in the General Sessions by Lawyer T. J. McManus, on the grounds that the District Attorney had never even put the case on the calendar and that Gannon's fine record of thirty years in the Police Department, during which time he had received three medals of honor, entitled him to consideration. The motion was opposed by District Attorney Jerome. "I would like to know," he said, "whether Capt. Gannon has informed his counsel that he has offered to squeal on certain politicians and higher-up policemen?" Mr. McManus jumped to his feet. "I want to say," he declared, "that Capt. Gannon was called to this building last Monday and taken to the office of Assistant District Attorney Morgan. Mr. Morgan said to him; 'Now, captain, we are more anxious to get an inspector than a captain and if you have any information to give us against Inspector Thompson, or who ever is in charge of the district including the Eighteenth precinct, it would be taken into consideration.' Capt. Gannon said that he had no such information to give.' "Oh, that was only one of a number of Gannon," replied Mr. Jerome. "Capt. Gannon came to us of his own accord to convey to us information that may still be of value. If so, he may do the people of this State a service, redress the wrong he has already done and merit some clemency which otherwise he would not be entitled to

Mr. Jerome said that to oblige Mr. Mc-Manus he would see to it that Gannon is tried both at Headquarters and, on Jan. 26, in the Criminal Courts. Mr. McManus's reply to this promise was cut short by the Recorder, who said:
"The District Attorney has said that he will put Capt. Gannon on trial on Jan. 26. I will dismiss this motion with leave to re-new it if he doesn't keep his promise." An Assistant District Attorney said that An Assistant District Attorney said that the revelation made by Gannon concerned Bunt Reilly's pool room in East Eighty-eighth street, and Gannon told the District Attorney, THE SUN's informant said, that Reilly had called on him at the East Eighty-eighth street station house and told him that Gannon must "stand for" him, and that when Gannon refused Reilly returned with a Tammany Hall politician who made the same statement. Gannon gave him the same answer and was transferred shortly afterward by Col. Partridge to Kingsbridge from the East Eighty-eighth street station, to which Capt. Creeden was assigned in his place. Who recommended the transfer to Col. Partridge is not stated. Gannon told Creeden about Reilly and the politician. The poolroom was eventually raided and Creeden and his wardman, Downes, were accused at Police Headquarters of neglect of duty. Downes is also indicted for running a poolroom. Gannon was to have been a witness against Creeden who was, however, retired after a stroke of apoplexy in the station house.
